A woman seldom learns to wear her mortal does with truest grace, until she passed that saccarnine period called "sweet sixteen;" in fact the body does not closely fit itself to the intellectual proportions and symmetry of the soul until they have worn it loo long to be called "young."

Age to one who knows how to meet it, is following in an essay on Growing Old: "Yes, if woman could only believe it there is a wonderful beauty even in growing old. The charm of expression arising from softened temper or ripened intellect, often amply atones for the loss of form and coloring; and consequently to those who could never boast either of these latter, years give much more than they take tway. A sensitive person oft requires half a lifetime to get thoroughly used to this orporeal machine to attain a wholesome indifference both to its defects and perfec-tions, and to learn at last what nobody would acquire from any teacher but experience, that it is the mind alone which is of any consequence, that, with a good temper, incerity, and a moderate stock of brainsor even the former only-any sort of body can in time be made useful, respectable and agreeable as a traveling dress for the dress for the soul. Many a one; who was absolately plain in youth, thus grows pleasant and well looking in declining years. You will hardly ever find anybody, not ugly in mind, who is repulsively ugly in person after middle life. — Chicago Journal.

A Cleveland Sell. The local of the Cleveland Plaindealer gets off the following. He was among the sold:

We have now something of a tremendous ly icy nature to chronicle which happened here at home. Last week a Mile. Melville was announced to walk one hundred consecutive hours at the Clipper Shades, Seneca-street. Mile. Mel ille appeared, and with a slow and stately tread perambulated an elevated platform in tights and abbreviated dress. She was graceful in form and lithe in motion. Her face she kept closely veiled. Mlle. drew large audiences. The receipts during the "100 consecutive hours" amounted to over $400. Stories of Mile, peerless beauty circulated freely and were eagerly swallowed. Gentlemen undertook to concerve with Mile, but she only shook her head in reply. She was French and could speak no English. Among the most constant visitors at the Clipper Shades during the "walking" was a young farmer from Marion county. He fell in love with Mile. . He became what is sometime called "dead struck." His feelings got so worked up at last that he offered her through her business man, his hand in marriage, after being assured that she was chaste and amiable. The business man conveyed the offer to Mile., who said she would think of it. At length the walking closed and Mlle. disappeared. The young farmer hunted wildly through the city for her, but she was not to be found. He met a retired sporting-man, who informed him that the walking lady's parents resided in Newark, N. J., and that in all probability she was there with them. Thanking the retired sporting man for his bier's heaven a pair-o-dice intellige ce, the young farmer instantly started for the "Jarsies." Nobody knows where he is now.

We are rapidly approaching the "point"
—the coolness of the thing. "Mile. Mel ville" is a young Irishman with blazing red hair and hiskers. He is a well-known character about town. He adopted the walking dodge to raise the wind, and did it pretty effectually. A female dress-maker prepared his costume, and his glossy black ouris he procured of a well-known barber. While some will doubtless say " hey knew all about it," is still believed that he sucour fellow-citizens. Even the press, the your succeeding. "Archimedean lever which moves the world," was somewhat deceived. This fellow is evidently a highly disreputable character, but, under the circumstances, we find it difficult to be angry with him.

The captain for the just double, he said, what he paid for the most handsom Circassian Georgian, or Mingrelian, ever brought to the Alexandrian market. The capt in, however, stuck to his price, and so the parties separated. But on the following morning, when the captain was escorting the lady to the resience of her friends, the Turk again made his appearance, and throwing another fig necklace around the lady's neck, intimated that he was prepared to give the requisite sum! Here was a dileimma. But the cap-tain soon cleared himself. "Poh!" sai he, you're too late; I sold her vesterday for a housand piastres more; so you've lost her.' Ague Cure, FOR THE SPEEDY CURE OF

Intermittent Fever, or Fever and Ague, Remittent Fever, Chill Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical Headache, or Bilious Headache, and Bilious Fevers, indeed for the whole class of diseases originating in biliary derangement, caused by the Malaria of miasmatic countries. No one remedy is louder called for by the necessities of the American people than a sure and safe cure for Fever and Ague. Such we are now enabled to offer, with a perfect certainty that it will eradicate the disease, and with assurance, founded on proof, that no harm can arise from its use in any quan-

That which protects from or prevents this disorder must be of immense service in the communities where it prevails. Prevention is better than cure, for the patient escapes the risk which he must run in violent attacks of this baleful distemper. This "Cure" expels the miasmatic poison of Fever and Ague from the system and prevents the development of the disease, if taken on the first approach of its premonitors symptoms. proach of its premonitory symptoms. It is not only the best remedy ever yet discovered for this class of complaints, but also the cheapest. The large quantity we supply for a dollar brings it within the reach of every body; and in bilious districts, where Feven and Ague prevails, every body should have it and use it freely both for cure and protection.

It is hoped this price will place it within the reach of all—the poor as well as the rich. A great superiority of this remedy over any obey orders. The more he is ordered to other ever discovered for the speedy and cerno Quinine or mineral, consequently it pro-duces no quinism or other injurious effects whatever upon the constitution. Those cured by it are left as healthy as if they had never had the disease.

Fever and Ague is not alone the consequence of the miasmatic poison. A great variety of disorders arise from its irritation, among which are Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Gout, Headache, Blindness, Toothache, Earache, Catarrh, Asthma, Paipitation, Painful Affection of the Spleen, Hysteries, Pain in the Bowels, Colic, Spleen, Hysterics, Pain in the Bowels, Colic, Paralysis, and Derangement of the Stomach, all of which, when originating in this cause, put on the intermittent type, or become periodical. Thus "Cune" expels the poison from the blood, and consequently cures them all alike. It is an invaluable protection to immigrants and persons travelling or temporarily residing in the malarious districts. If taken occasionally or daily while exposed to the infection, that will be excreted from the system, and cannot accumulate in sufficient quantity to ripen into d.sease. Hence it is even more valuable for protection than cure, and few will ever suffer from Intermittents, if they avail themselves of the protection this remedy af-their action can rarely withstand or evade them. Their penetrating properties search, and cleanse, and invigorate every portion of the human organism, correcting its diseased action, and restoring its healthy vitalities. As a consequence of these properties, the invalid who is bowed down with pain or physical debility is astonished to find his health or energy restored by a remedy at once so simple and inviting.

So wide is the field of its usefulness and so numerous are the cases of its cures, that almost every section of country abounds in persons publicly known, who have been restored from alarming and even desperate diseases of the lungs by its use. When once tried, its superiority over every other medicine of its kind is too apparent to escape observation, and where its virtues are known, the public no longer hesitate what antidote to employ for the distressing and dangerous affections of the pulmonary organs that are incident to our chimate. While many inferior remedies thrust upon the community have failed and been discarded, this has gained friends by every trial, conferred benefits on the afflicted they can never forret, and produced cures too numerous and too remarkable to be forgotten. be forgotten.
